Βιογραφικό

Dr. Petros Mavrommatis, MD, FESC is a leading cardiologist specializing in noninvasive diagnostic techniques. His primary interest is echocardiography (transthoracic, transesophageal, intra-operative and dynamic stress echo). He has accumulated 40 years of training and experience, practicing cardiology for over 30 years and serving as the director of the Cardiology Clinic at Paphos General Hospital since its establishment in 2004 until his retirement in 2016. Since September 2016, he is the Consultant Cardiologist and Director at Cardiac Care Centre in Paphos (www.cypruscardiac.com). He joined the GHS as a Cardiologist in June 2019.

He received his formal medical education at the University of Athens, Greece from 1970 to 1976. He was awarded the specialties of internal medicine and cardiology after training for seven years (1977-1983) at various teaching hospitals in Athens. He repatriated to Cyprus after being appointed at the public sector in 1984. In addition to his initial duties in internal medicine, and throughout his long service at Paphos Hospital, he was instrumental in the development and establishment of modern cardiological services.

Dr. Mavrommatis gained short-term fellowships in the United Kingdom (WHO, 1989) and United States (Fulbright, 1995), specializing in all fields of echocardiography. He was the first to introduce transesophageal echo to Cyprus in 1993 and stress echo in 1996, and he has been a pioneer in training more than two dozen cardiologists in these fields. He has contributed to several peer-reviewed journal articles and numerous conference presentations. He is a Fellow of the European Society of Cardiology (FESC).
